

Wann Selected as KATEA 2002 Teacher of the Year

Donald Wann, a machine tool technology instructor at KY Tech Fulton Co. Area Technology Center has been named the 2002 Kentucky Applied Technology Education Association (KATEA) Outstanding Teacher of the Year. KATEA recognizes an outstanding teacher and program in Industrial Education, Technology Education, and Health and Personal Services during its annual conference each year.

Wann, a five year KY Tech employee, has worked to keep his classroom current in equipment and software, incorporated instructional technology into his lesson plans using multiple formats and worked closely with SkillsUSA VICA to guide students toward success in leadership and technical skills.

“Mr. Wann provides a worthy opportunity for his students to learn a valuable skill and develop into responsible young adults,” says Fulton Co. ATC Principal Tom Pyron.

Donald Wann -- 2002 KATEA
Outstanding Teacher of the Year

“It makes you feel almost guilty for being recognized for something that you enjoy so much,” says Wann. “I feel so grateful that my K.A.T.E.A. colleagues selected me for this great honor.”

KENTUCKY
TECH nically Speaking
November 20, 2002
Tech News Flash #4